Within the proper limits of a case we can conclude that although the technology is under development, the results have been excellent, without encountering the disadvantages facing convencionales techniques. We hope that in the near future indications are broader than currently.

REFERENCES: